To Whom It May Concern:

I am pleased to write this letter of recommendation for Abhishek Nagaraja, whom I have known for approximately one and a half years. As a student worker at the University of Texas at Arlington's Center for Entrepreneurship and Technology Development (CETD), Abhishek has demonstrated a passion for entrepreneurship. He has sought and taken full advantage of leadership opportunities where he can make an impact.

One example is how Abhishek worked closely with CETD's Faculty Liaison to relaunch the university's Entrepreneurship Club. In its first year under Abhishek's leadership, the club has held numerous interactive sessions, workshops and student-led initiatives, including MavMarket. MavMarket is a student marketplace held once each semester. Over 200 student vendors have generated an estimated $100,000 in sales by showcasing their products and side hustles. Not many students can say they have conceived, launched, and managed what is quickly becoming a campus tradition.

Abhishek has also generated significant impact through his leadership role in helping launch and manage the Arlington chapter of One Million Cups. 1MC is a globally recognized platform to support anyone with entrepreneurial aspirations. In his capacity as a co-organizer, Abhishek has reveled in building and connecting a broad network that bridges campus and the regional community.

I look forward to seeing how Abhishek pursues opportunities that harness his intellectual curiosity, hone his leadership qualities, and utilize his drive to innovate.

Do not hesitate to contact me at any point.

Sincerely,
